

Online Learning Links

- <http://onlineworldwide.nebraska.edu/Student-Resources/Success-Tips.aspx> - A resource put together by the University of Nebraska for students thinking about an online course. It provides tips as well as factors to consider before taking an online course as your option.
- <http://www.ion.uillinois.edu/resources/tutorials/pedagogy/studentprofile.asp> - The Illinois Online Network provides background strategies and describes the skills and requirements necessary in order to be successful in online learning. Read through the points carefully and make sure you truly meet the criteria.

Discussion Forum Links

- <http://www.wpi.edu/Academics/ATC/Collaboratory/Idea/boards.html> - This site is designed for the monitor, but lists some good guidelines for your discussion posts. Using the ideas presented on this site will help you post threads that will encourage deeper thinking and more interaction.
- <http://www.wikihow.com/Use-Discussion-Posts-in-Online-College-Courses> - Tips for beginners on how to understand forum questions and do effective research before posting. Use evernote along with the mentioned "highlighting" to keep track of information.

Evernote Links

- <http://campusplash.com/epic-productivity-evernote-college-work/> - Evernote may be new to several learners. It is a great way to organize and keep your notes, but for effective use you must have some guidance. This article gives great ideas on how to use Evernote to organize your lectures and research papers.
- <http://blog.evernote.com/2010/12/15/10-evernote-tips-for-school-education-series/> - A second source with good ideas on how to use Evernote to make your class time more effective and keep yourself organized for class.

Project Management Links

- <http://michaelgreer.biz/> - Michael Greer is an author who teaches the fundamentals of minimalist project management. His tips and suggestions are good starting points for beginning project managers. He also provides links to other sites focusing on project management.
- http://www.thomsettinternational.com/main/articles/articles\_toc.htm - Thomsett International is an Australian company offering training and resources for project managers. The articles presented here will help you with research necessary for your upcoming class.